The J-STD-020 standard sets guidelines for packaging, storage, and handling surface mount devices to prevent damage during the assembly process. It covers components for lead-free and Sn-Pb assemblies processed at various temperatures. This revision includes clarifications on classification temperature, package volume, dry weight, and bake time, ensuring consistency in scope and application. The updated standard also considers bare-die with polymer and non-IC packages. You can purchase a digital copy of the standard immediately after buying for $21.50, which allows printing and multi-user access.
